SEEK BODIES OF TWO BUCYRUS LAKE VICTIMS

William Benz, 53, and Son, Russell, Drown After Fishing Boat Capsizes.

THIRD IN PARTY SURVIVES

Clarence Bailey, 40, Pulled from Sandusky Bay After Floating 8 Hours.

Special to The Star

BUCYRUS, Sept. 6—Search for the bodies of William Benz, 53, Bucyrus baker, and his son, Russell, 24, who were drowned Saturday afternoon near Bay bridge on Lake Erie, had been unsuccessful at noon today. The drowning was witnessed by Clarence Bailey, 40, of Bucyrus who was with them when their fishing boat capsized in the strong current near Bay bridge, seven miles west of Sandusky, and who fought for his life for eight hours before he was finally rescued from Sandusky bay.

Coast Guard Captain Morton of the Marblehead station today said that owing to wind conditions and varying currents, it might be several days before the bodies are found.

The trio was returning to shore after setting night lines when the boat capsized in a sudden storm. Bailey is reported to be recovering at his home here from exposure after having clung to a piece of piling in the water for more than eight hours before help arrived.

Hear Calls for Help

Two boys heard Bailey's calls for help early Sunday morning and rescued him in a lifeboat. He was near exhaustion and collapsed as soon as he was taken ashore.

Bailey told Sheriff John W. Parker of Sandusky that he was putting up what had come to seem a losing battle for life in the current when he was suddenly dashed against the piling.

"I grabbed and was lucky enough to get a hold," he declared. "I held on for dear life through the night. Much of the time it was raining pitchforks."

The Benz family resids at 127 Galion street here. Surviving the father and son is the widow and mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Westburg Benz and four children, Tekla, a Cleveland school teacher, William and Wilhelmina at home and Elizabeth, a Toledo nurse. Mr. Benz' mother, Mrs. Philip Benz, is living in Germany.

Native of Cincinnati

Mr. Benz was born in Cincinnati on June 29, 1879. He was a member of the Bucyrus Good Hope Lutheran church and of the Eagles lodge.

Russell Benz was born in Galion, Feb. 18, 1908. He attended the Bucyrus schools and was associated with his father in the Benz bakery. He was a member of the Good Hope Lutheran church.

The double drowning was in addition to 13 other persons reported killed in various accidents over the two and one-half day holiday weekend, according to an Associated Press dispatch. Three of the deaths were the results of airplane accidents, three were caused by automobile mishaps, while a train, a speed boat and a fall completed the list.

6,000 GO TO WORK IN PLANTS AT TOLEDO

Automobile and Accessory Factories Prepare for Anticipated Business.

By The Associated Press

TOLEDO, O., Sept. 6—About 6,000 workers returned to work this morning in plants here which have been virtually closed for the last two or three weeks.

A force of 4,300 workers resumed their tasks in the Willys-Overland plant and additional hundreds began their tasks at Electric Auto Lite and some other smaller plants.

At the Willys-Overland plant there were long strings of cars on the side roads—the cars of workers who again had resumed their jobs.

Officials at the plants said no sudden increase in production is planned but that betterment in the automotive lines is anticipated and plants are preparing to meet this.

Main Ford Plant Reopened Today

By The Associated Press

DETROIT, Sept. 6—The main plant of the Ford Motor Co. which has been shut down three weeks, was reopened today. Company officials announced that employes gradually would be returned to work in the various departments.

Only former employes were being returned, the officials said, adding that men were being returned to work as rapidly as the methods of operation in the departments would permit.

The company made no announcement of the number of men involved.

Lorra Truesdale, 21, of Elida, O., (above), has confessed he killed his brother, Earl, and Thelma Woods of Lima, on May 30, 1931, and threw their bodies in a quarry near Lima. His confession cleared up a mystery that it was feared would go unsolved.

JIMMY GAINS NEW LAURELS

COMPLETES GRAND SLAM

Major Teams with Other Missourians To Monopolize High-Speed Honors.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 6—The soaring of two Missouri flying comrades have turned in a grand slam in aviation's high-speed classics.

Major James H. Doolittle, riding his "red-nosed," monoplane, completed the supremacy at high speeds demonstrated during the gayest air races by his wide margin victory in the 100-mile free-for-all race yesterday. His flying comrade, James Haizlip, a week earlier had flashed across the continent to a new transcontinental speed mark of 10 hours and 19 minutes. Haizlip's wife, May, a few hours before had pushed the unofficial women's landplane speed record to 255.313 miles an hour, and Doolittle himself, on Saturday had boosted the men's landplane speed record to 296.287 miles an hour.

In winning the final speed event of the races, Doolittle lapped all his seven rivals except James R. Wedell of Patterson, La., who finished second with an average speed of 242.495 miles an hour, only slightly less than 10 miles an hour slower than Doolittle's 252.686 average.

Roscoe C. Turner was third with 233.062 miles an hour average and Haizlip, fourth, with 231.304.

Sixty-five thousand persons were estimated to have jammed the airport to witness Doolittle's spectacular final victory and probably at least that many lined the roads outside the airport fences.

Only three serious accidents, one fatal, marred the races. Al Wilson, veteran stunt flier, died of injuries received Saturday when his reproduction of a 1910 model "pusher" plane was smashed in a collision with the whirling blades of Johnny Miller's autogiro.

Workers' Pay Boosted.

WILMINGTON, N. C., Sept. 6—A 10 per cent increase in wages effective Sept. 12 and affecting 200 men now working on a full time schedule was announced today by officials of the Sprofford Mills, Inc., here.

GOVERNMENT FARM BOARD STOPS SALES

MOVE RESULTS IN RALLY

Liverpool and Chicago Both Score Brisk Gains After Announcement.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6—Sales of stabilization wheat and government-controlled cotton definitely were halted today until next year.

This decision was announced by Chairman Stone of the farm board after being made possible by a $50,000,000 Reconstruction corporation loan to the cotton stabilization corporation and American cotton cooperative association.

Stone made his announcement in two statements; one issued on behalf of the cotton groups and one for the grain stabilization corporation.

The latter said its unsold wheat stocks, amounting to less than 3,000,000 bushels as compared with 250,000,000 bushels four months ago, "will not be reduced by sales before Jan. 1, 1933, except such sales of this 3,000,000 as may be made for shipment to foreign countries that otherwise would not be important buyers of United States wheat."

The corporation added that all future contracts now held also will be retained over the same period.

The cotton cooperative said its present stocks, approximating 2,000,000 bales, will not be sold before July 31, 1933, except where there are existing foreign consignees or where a 12-cent price, based on the near month of the New York exchange, can be obtained.

Farm Board Decision Causes Grain Advance

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Sept. 6—The farm board's announcement that its stabilization stores of wheat would stay out of the market until 1933 was one of the stimulating factors that shot wheat prices up from 1⅞ to 2¼ cents a bushel at the opening of today's market.

Liverpool had set the example, and the rush to buy wheat futures was general as the traders returned to the pit after the week-end holiday.

A reaction soon after the opening checked the advance, but wheat for September delivery had touched 55¾, December had reached 60 and May 65 cents a bushel at the first splurge of buying.

The American holiday yesterday had slowed down the world offerings of wheat, and the absence of Russian offerings today was conducive to a bullish feeling in Liverpool. The farm board's decision to keep its wheat in the bin for another year was the signal, at home and abroad, for a wave of buying orders.

RIO GRANDE FLOOD WATERS RECEDING

By The Associated Press

BROWNSVILLE, Tex., Sept. 6—Hundreds of persons were homeless but the rich citrus and farming lands of the lower Rio Grande valley appeared to have escaped major damage as the Rio Grande flood crest swept slowly toward Brownsville and the Gulf of Mexico today. Lowlands adjoining the river were under water but levees and floodways protected other sections.

Just how many lives had been lost in the upper stretches of the river, where the property damage was greatest, was not definitely known.

Loss in Val Verde county alone was estimated at $2,000,000.

1,500 JOIN MARION LABOR CELEBRATION

Sports, Music, Indian Ceremonies on Program: Lyte Reviews History of Holiday.

The fiftieth anniversary of Labor day was celebrated at Lincoln park Monday when more than 1,500 persons joined in a program sponsored by the Central Labor union.

Favored by ideal weather, the complete program of sports, music, Indian ceremonies and brief talks was given in conjunction with a picnic dinner and supper.

G. S. Lyte, chairman of the committee in charge of the observance, gave the principal talk at the picnic supper. He reviewed the history of Labor day, relating that the movement to set aside one day of the year for labor was started in New York City May 8, 1882. Labor day, he said, became a national holiday in 1894 when President Grover Cleveland signed a bill on June 28. He then gave a brief resume of the labor movement in Marion.

Following the ball games, an archery contest was held by Boy Scouts from Lima, Findlay and Marion. The local team composed of Bob Case of Troop 8 and Clint Evans of Troop 12 won with a score of 177 points. Lima placed second. Charles Howard and Ralph Emmons, local scout leaders, judged the contest.

A council fire ceremony was held in true Indian fashion by scouts from the three cities. The scouts were dressed in full Indian costumes, made by themselves. The campfire was started by Clint Evans using a bow and drill.

Scout Executive Arthur S. Brooks spoke on the purpose and value of the scout program and of its importance as increasing leisure time is available. C. P. Allen of Marion, scout leader, explained the work the scouts have done in studying the history of the Wyandot Indian tribe.

Indian dances and ceremonials in costume were demonstrated by the scouts. The Lima delegation was in charge of Norman Reed, and the Findlay group was led by N. W. Franks.

Music was played by the Municipal band following a concert on the courthouse esplanade shortly after noon.

Three Conferences Proposed for Ohio

By The Associated Press

CINCINNATI, Sept. 6—Division of Ohio into three conferences rather than the two that now prevail, was proposed today by the Ohio conference of the Methodist Episcopal church.

Appointment of a committee of five, to confer with representatives of the Northeast Ohio conference, operating in some northeastern counties of the state, was authorized by the group. The purpose, it was stated, is to seek formation of another Methodist Episcopal conference in the state to make the present Ohio conference less unwieldy and to make for closer supervision of church activities.

The closing day of the conference heard a report from a committee appointed a year ago to seek exemption from military training for the Methodist students at Ohio State university. The committee said the exemption sought had been granted.

Chief Business for Today

Efforts of the final day were concentrated, however, on completion of the list of pastoral assignments. A resolution which the Enquirer said was prepared, criticizing Dr. Clarence True Wilson of Washington for a "political speech, unseemly and out of order," did not reach the floor.

Dr. Wilson, secretary of the church board of temperance, prohibition, and public morals, spoke before the conference Sunday night, and the Enquirer quoted him as saying that "President Hoover deserted the dry forces the

ROOP, DAVIDSON SENT BACK TO POSTS HERE

Two Marion Ministers Returned to Pulpits by Conferences.

The return of two ministers in their Marion pastorates was announced today, following the close of their church conference.

Rev. Carl V. Roop has been returned to Marion to enter his fourth year as pastor of the First United Brethren church. He spent last week in Fostoria, attending the centennial meeting of the Sandusky conference of the United Brethren church.

The assignments of pastors for the next year were announced today following the closing Sunday of the annual assembly of the Ohio district of the Nazarene church, at Columbus.

Rev. J. E. Davidson was reassigned to the First church here for his third year.

Rev. Roop was named to a special evangelistic committee of the Sandusky conference, an important committee in the coming year.

Approximately 50 members of the First U. B. church here attended the Saturday session of the conference. The men's chorus of the church sang a group of six numbers Saturday night. Harry Fowler was the lay delegate to the conference.

Six delegates, including the pastor, attended the Columbus meeting from the First Church of the Nazarene. They were Rev. and Mrs. Davidson, Mrs. Mamie Twining, president of the young people's society, Mrs. Ed. Ellington, president of the Women's Missionary society, Ellery Davis, Sunday school superintendent, and Mrs. William Dutton.

OFFICER'S CATCH COSTS MAN $100

Charles Agard of Eastwood avenue was fined $100 and costs this morning in municipal court because a member of Marion's police force probably would make a good fielder on a baseball team.

Agard attempted to destroy the evidence when arrested last night on a charge of illegal possession of intoxicating liquor, police reported. Two bottles were thrown from Agard's automobile. One of them broke while Patrolman A. W. McColly caught the other. Some beer was found in the machine.

Agard pleaded guilty.

TWO WOMEN HURT IN RUSH FOR JOBS

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 6—One woman was cut as a large plate glass window was smashed and another fainted today when 2,500 women pressed upon a downtown department store which had advertised for additional employes.

In Old West

(Will Rogers Special)

BEATTY, Nev., Sept. 6—Had a wonderful day. Started out early yesterday morning at Tonopah, the famous old silver mining town, then down to Goldfield, the gold town. There, Labor day, 1906, was the start of Tex Rickard. I stood on the ground where, 26 years ago yesterday, "Battling" Nelson and George Dixon fought 42 rounds. They had fighters in those days as well as promoters.

Then out to Death Valley Scotty's castle. Arabian Nights never conceived anything like that, on the desert.

Then to Beatty, and the famous old Ryolite and mining towns. If they should ever momentarily get sensible and make silver a money, all this would come back.

Now for Las Vegas, Nev., and the Boulder Dam. Water costs more than gold in this west.

WILL QUESTION JEAN HARLOW

WIDOW NEAR COLLAPSE

Condition Prevents Immediate Interview About Paul Bern Tragedy.

By The Associated Press

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., Sept. 6—In an effort to uncover a motive for the apparent suicide of Paul Bern, motion picture producer, Inspector of Detectives David A. Davidson announced today he would question Jean Harlow, screen star who married the producer two months ago.

Davidson said he would call on Miss Harlow at the home of her parents as soon as he received word the actress was in a condition to be interviewed. Miss Harlow was reported near a collapse today.

Although Davidson said there was no doubt in his mind that the death of Bern, whose body was found yesterday afternoon in his Beverly Hills home, was a suicide, the inspector said he wanted to clear up all angles of the case.

"Miss Harlow may be able to tell something that will aid us in our investigation," he said.

Widow Hysterical

The widow was at the home of her parents in Beverly Hills today. She became hysterical on being informed of the death of her husband and so far has made no statement to police.

Slumped before a mirror in a dressing room of his picturesque home, Bern's body was found yesterday, a bullet hole through the head. Detectives said the young film executive obviously had taken his own life, but they found no hint of the cause.

When found by a butler, John Carmichael, Bern's right hand gripped a revolver, one chamber discharged. On a nearby dresser was another firearm. Beside a picture of Miss Harlow a note lay, it read:

"Dearest Dear: Unfortunately this is the only way to make good the frightful wrong I have done you and to wipe out my abject humiliation. I love you, Paul." A postscript: "You understand last night was only a comedy."

Miss Harlow was overcome with grief and her anguished cries could be heard by a crowd which gathered about the residence of her mother, Mrs. Marino Bello. Physicians quieted her with sedatives and detectives who sought to discuss the tragedy with her left. They said they would return today, after a coroner's autopsy, in an attempt to find a plausible reason for Bern's act.

Away from Office Often

Close friends of the 42-year-old film executive said Bern had appeared at his office infrequently during the last 10 days. Some expressed the opinion he was on the verge of a nervous breakdown. Others said Bern hinted a man might well conclude his life when his work was done. Possibility of domestic difficulties between the couple drew quick denials from intimate friends.

Miss Harlow was at her mother's home when she received word of her husband's death. She had gone there Saturday night after working at a studio. Friends said she understood Bern would be occupied by a business engagement and she wished to be with her mother.

GRAND JURY OPENS FOUR-DAY SESSION

Twenty-Three Cases Before Court Body; Prosecutor Wilhelm Directs Work.

Four days of work faced the September term grand jury when it convened this morning to consider the first of 23 cases scheduled for the term.

Nine cases were slated by Prosecutor H. M. Wilhelm for consideration today.

Three cases were added to the grand jury list since the original list of 20 was announced last week. They include the name of Theophilus Curtis of Marion, charged with the first degree murder of Thomas P. Bonnett, also of Marion, during a quarrel Wednesday night at a veterans' picnic southeast of here. The others are William Johnson, charged with driving an automobile without permission of the owner, and Jay Baker, charged with non-support.

Cases of persons indicted by the grand jury will be placed before the common pleas court. They will be given opportunity to plead before Judge George B. Scofield, and will be given trial before the court and a petit jury if they plead not guilty to their respective charges. Indicted persons pleading guilty before the common pleas court will be sentenced.

Presbies, K.-P.'s To Resume Little World Series Today

DON SHOEMAKER TO OPPOSE SCHWADERER IN FOURTH CONFLICT

Stiff Contest Likely, Though Defeat Will Eliminate Neither Team.

Having taken time off to celebrate Labor day the First Presbyterians and K. of P. softball teams will climb back into the harness today for the resumption of the struggle to determine which is the best diamond sunshine in the City of Prestige. These teams will cross bats for the first time in the series today and when the battle is over one will have joined the list of defeated teams although neither will have been eliminated from the series. Both have one victory to their credit and neither has been beaten. The team that goes through today's game unscathed will have the inside track on the path to the series championship although the title will not be won by any means just because of the victory.

Dale Schwaderer and Don Shoemaker will probably oppose each other on the hill as the teams square off for the all-important melee. Both flingers have impressive records behind them for the season but it appears quite likely that both will have to depend considerably on their mates ability in the field. Both teams have demonstrated unusual ability to smack the ball to all corners of the lot, regardless of the opposition's pitching and as a result the game is not likely to be any succession of strikeouts and lazy pop-ups. Rather than that, dame fortune will probably smile on the team which turns in the best defensive play. But that's not at all certain. These series softball games have a way of turning out altogether different that advance dope indicates. That's what makes the turnaties click so regularly.

The loser of the game today will meet the Gasco club Thursday in a tilt which will see another team eliminated from the race. All games start promptly at 6 p. m.

MARION EX-LEGIONS LOSE TO HILLSBORO

Greenland Touched for 10 Hits as Local Club Drops Sunday Tilt.

The Marion Ex Legions dropped a close baseball game Sunday to the Hillsboro team on the Lincoln park diamond, 5-4. The defeat dropped the Marion club below the 500 per cent mark, the team having won three and lost four.

With Earl Castner and Don Lindsey, first string pitchers, Manager Walter Hane nominated R. Greenland to do the flinging for the Marion team. Greenland did a good job on the hill, despite the fact he was touched for 10 safeties. Hillsboro's heavy hitters clubbed the ball hard and bunched their hits effectively in the fifth and sixth frames.

Marion collected six hits and turned them into six runs but couldn't take a lot of advantage of the five Hillsboro errors.

Batteries and score by innings:

Hillsboro	010	004	000	—	5	10	5
Marion	012	200	000	—	5	6	1

Hillsboro, Boyer, Stanforth and Donohoo; Marion, R. Greenland, J. Vestal and D. Greenland.

MARION GRAYS IN DOUBLE SETBACK

The Marion Merchant Grays, colored, dropped two games over the two-day holiday period, losing to Caledonia 4-4 Sunday and to the Oakland All-Stars Monday, 8-4. Both games were played at the Shovel athletic field.

Batteries for the Sunday game were: Caledonia, Huffman and Slagle. Marion, Thomas, H. Adams and Jones. Batteries Monday were: Oakland, Darnell Hardin and A. Hardin; Grays, W. Adams and Jones.

Rain Delays Game.

Rain Saturday afternoon stopped the championship game of the Marion county softball league's Little World series. The title will be decided next Saturday at 4 p. m. at the Shovel athletic field.

The first game will be played the afternoon of the 27th, the second game on the night of Sept. 28, and the third the afternoon of Sept. 30.

YANKS GRAB DOUBLE BILL; NEED ONLY SIX WINS FOR PENNANT

Athletics Stopped by McCarthymen, 8-6 and 6-3; Chicago Cubs Split.

By The Associated Press

Joe McCarthy's pennant bound New York Yankees garnered the most valuable share of Labor day's crop of double-headers.

Facing the Philadelphia Athletics, the Yankees tossed their twin mound aces, southpaw Vernon Gomez and righthanded Johnny Allen, into the fray and emerged with two victories 8-6 and 6-3 that left them leading the Athletics by 12½ games. Six more Yankee victories, or any combination of Yankee victories and Athletics defeats which totals six, automatically will give the Yankees the pennant. Washington, in third place, will be eliminated when the Yankees win five games or when Yankee victories and Washington defeats total five.

Gomez turned in his twenty third victory against six defeats in the opener. Allen won his sixteenth game against two losses in the nightcap. Babe Ruth hit his fortieth homer in the first game.

Effective pitching by Alvin Crowder and Fred Marberry gave Washington two victories over the Boston Red Sox, 6-2 and 9-3, and Cleveland walloped the St. Louis Browns twice, 12-9 and 8-4. Earl Averill clouting his twenty-ninth and thirtieth homers in the opener. Detroit turned back the Chicago White Sox, 5-3, but the Sox came back to take the nightcap, 3-1.

In the National league, Pittsburgh shaved another game off the Chicago Cubs' lead by whipping the St. Louis Cardinals twice, 4-3 and 3-1. The Cubs split a double header with the Cincinnati Reds, winning the first, 9-2, but dropping the second, 6-5.

The Phillies advanced to within two and one-half games of the third place Brooklyn Dodgers by taking the New York Giants over the hurdles twice, 3-2 and 5-4, despite Mel Ott's thirtieth and thirty-first homers.

The Boston Braves took two from Brooklyn, 13-2 and 5-4.

Old Alex Still Flings 'Em Across

By The Associated Press

COUNCIL BLUFFS, Ia., Sept. 6—Grover Cleveland Alexander—Remember the day he came shuffling from the bull pen to the mound in Yankee stadium to strike out Tony Lazzeri and silence the Yanks last great threat to beat the St. Louis Cardinals out of a world's championship?—

He's still pulling the rescue act with the greatest of success. Old Alex, now tossing 'em over for the House of David semi-pro team, has saved two games for his team in the southwestern Iowa tourney with the result that the Davids have reached the finals.

On the first occasion, Alex did the trick with one pitch, a slow curve that was hit into the ground with the tying and winning run on base in the ninth. The second rescue act was staged in the eighth inning of the Davids next tourney game. Alex was nicked for a run before he retired the side but went on to retire the hitters in order in the ninth.

MAR-O-DEL LOSES TO FAIRWAY INN

The Mar-O-Dale golf club team dropped a one-sided match to the Fairway Inn team of Mansfield on the local course Sunday, losing by a 33-18 score. Harold Waddell and Alex Newell turned in the low scores for the losing team, both with 80s. Pete Lanzer and R. Mull with 76's were low for the winners.

This is the last scheduled interclub match for the Mar-O-Del but one more may be added later.

Chuck Welch Mar-O-Del manager, has requested the request for each entrant for the Marion county Amateur Invitee tournament. The qualifying rounds for this tourney will be played next Sunday.

"GRUDGE" MATCH TO HEAD TENNIS CARD

NEW YORK, Sept. 6—Tennis addicts at Forest Hills turned their attention today from the main business at hand—the battle for Ellsworth Vines Jr.'s national championship crown—to concentrate their enthusiasm on a "grudge" match that may have no bearing at all on the title fight.

The principals were George Lott Jr., the veteran Davis cup star from Chicago, and Frankie Parker, the 16-year-old Milwaukee lad who practically has ruined the present outdoor season for his older rival. Their battle promises to provide the highlights of the third round.

They have clashed five times previously this summer, with victory perching on Parker's banner in four instances. He beat Lott in such important events as the National clay courts, Canadian championship and western clay courts.

'Well Sir, We Agree-!'

Last week, we announced that we would award a pair of Bostonian or Miller Cork Shoes to the ball player with the highest batting average in the current World Series, providing he made 12 or more trips to the plate. Now, we decided on 12 trips because this was the average number for all batters in the series of 1931—but, we forgot, there were some tie games involved in that series—so, we agree with many who have discussed the proposition with us and in fairness to all, we are reducing the number to

GRIDSTER CAUGHT ON THE FLY

Pitt Mentor Wails After Look at Grid Candidates

By The Associated Press

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 6—September's brilliant sun bathes Camp Hamilton again, season trainors retreat of Pitt's football squad in the Pennsylvania hills near Johnstown—but shadows lurk on every hand and Coach John (Jock) Sutherland's face is dark.

"A bad year," mutters the sober Scot, shaking his head.

"My problems? I've got six problems. I need six linemen—and where am I going to get them?"

"Got an awful schedule. Not a set-down anyplace.

"After the opener with Ohio Northern, September 24, there's West Virginia, Duquesne, Army, Ohio State, Notre Dame, Penn, Nebraska, Carnegie Tech, and Stanford. All of 'em good, all of 'em after us."

Everything is backwards in the world this year, he explains, pointing out that instead of the slashing linemen Pitt always had, this year the talent runs to the backfield at the expense of the forwards.

His Buddy, Warren (Fats) Heller southpaw half, tosses the passes, is a demon of defense and took the team's high scoring honors a year ago. This combination scored via the air lanes on every major team faced in '31.

There is a host of promising subs who will force the vets to show cause why they shouldn't be removed from office.

YANKEE RIFLEMEN HAVE HIGH SCORE

By The Associated Press

CAMP PERRY, O., Sept. 6—The annual competition between American and British small bore rifle teams for the Dewar team title was completed today but the result was only half known.

The United States team's score of 7,872 out of a possible 8,000—only 64 misses per man in 400 shots each—was recorded yesterday at the concluding session of the national rifle matches.

That score was sent to Washington where it must be compared with a similar record of the scores of the British team of 20 shooters who fired on their home range.

BROOKS' MORTICIANS CAPTURE LABOR DAY SOFTBALL TOURNEY

Bucyrus, Two Marion Teams Beaten in Three-Game Meet.

The fast-traveling Brooks' Morticians, colored Columbus combine, romped off with the three-game softball tournament, staged yesterday at Lincoln park as part of the Labor day celebration here. The flashy capital city nine submerged the Bucyrus Bulldogs in the final game of the tourney by an 11-7 score, featured by the clouting of five home runs.

The Bucyrus nine took the measure of the Underwood Poultry team of Marion in the first game 12-7 with a seventh-inning flourish which netted six runs. Bucyrus took an early 5-0 lead but lost it as Marion's batters went on a rampage in the sixth for seven runs. Bucyrus came right back in the final frame and clubbed out a victory.

The Morticians grabbed the second game from the Jenner Lunches of Marion behind some nice pitching by Dudley, the speedball star. Dudley limited the Marion team to six hits and kept them well scattered. He struck out seven and was almost untouchable in the pinches. Keller, flinging for Marion, allowed 10 hits and struck out three.

The final game was a see saw affair, the lead changing hands frequently as first one team and then the other went on a clubbing splurge. Bucyrus collected a pair of circuit smashes while Columbus drove out a trio. Dudley returned to pitch this game and gave up 12 hits and struck out only four. Morgan, also pitching his second game, gave up 13 hits and struck out eight but he allowed the hits to be bunched and thus lost the battle.

Batteries and score by innings:

TOOTS AND CASPER BY JIMMY MURPHY

THE BOYS GAVE ME THIS WATCH AT THE BANQUET LAST NIGHT, TOOTS! SEE THE INSCRIPTION? IT SAYS - "TO CASPER IN RECOGNITION OF HIS ACCOMPLISHMENTS, AND WITH THE SINCERE AFFECTION OF THE MEMBERS OF THE GOOD-FELLOWS CLUB."
I CAN'T GET OVER THE THUNDEROUS APPLAUSE WHEN SOME GUY IN THE BALCONY YELLED, "CASPER FOR MAYOR!" IT NEARLY BROUGHT TEARS TO MY EYES! IT JUST GOES TO SHOW YOU THE WAY THE PEOPLE ARE THINKING!
I CAN HARDLY WAIT TO SEE THE ARTICLE ABOUT ME IN THE "DAILY SCREAM", TOOTS! I'M GONNA BUY SEVERAL HUNDRED COPIES AND MAIL THEM TO THOSE BIRDS BACK HOME WHO USED TO SAY I'D NEVER AMOUNT TO ANYTHING!
I HEAR THE NEWSBOY NOW, CASPER!
EXTRA! "DAILY SCREAM"
HEY, BOY!
CASPER HAS BE ALL CURIOUS TO SEE THE ARTICLE ABOUT HIM! WATCH FOR A SURPRIZE TOMORROW!

ANNIE ROONEY BY DARREL McCLURE

BRINGING UP FATHER BY GEORGE McMANUS

I MUST GIT THIS SPEECH WORD FER WORD AS I MUST WIN ALL THE VOTES I KIN AT THAT MEETIN' TO-MORROW- NOW LET'S SEE HOW MUCH OF IT I REMEMBER—

GRAINS STAGE BRISK RALLY

Government Withdrawal from Market Causes Immediate Uptrend at Chicago.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Sept 6 — All grain values jumped today responsive to announcement that sales of government financed wheat and cotton would top until next year. Sharp upturns in Liverpool wheat quotations preceded the opening here, and added to buying impetus. Opening 1½@2¼ cents higher, Chicago wheat futures held near the initial range. Corn started ¾@1¼ up and subsequently reacted somewhat.

In a general stampede to purchase wheat outdid the season's high price record for May contracts. Trade volume was on such a broad scale that individual dealings were lost sight of. Meanwhile, however, heavy profit taking sales acted as a curb on advances, and at times led to moderate reactions from early top prices.

Bulls in wheat took particular notice of relative smallness of receipts at Winnipeg only 886 cars today against 1,499 a week ago. Nothing was heard of any big new export demand for United States hard winter wheat. Here were predictions, too, of increases in the domestic visible supply, as well as of much augmented seeking of winter wheat. Large arrivals of corn here, 728 cars today compared with 267 at this time last year, served as a weight on corn and oats after the initial buying rush.

Provisions reflected upturns of cereals.

There were two "steel-helmet parades" today in Kingston, N. Y., where this is filed for telegraphing. In one, ten small boys had one drum, one real steel war helmet, which covered the proud owner's ears, and one cardboard imitation helmet. In the other parade, there was no real helmet and no drum, but there was an improvised flag and military marching.

Germany will march and plan for the next thirty or forty years, as France marched, planned and dreamed from 1870 to 1914. Then there will be another war, and for that France must keep prepared, especially in the air and under water. Size of population, luckily for France, will make little difference in the next war, but in that war there will be no Britain, Russia, Italy or United States to join an anti-Kaiser war. It will be one republic against the other, outside nations cheerfully selling goods to both.

"Nature in the Raw"—as portrayed by Harland Frazer...inspired by that marauding Viking chieftain whose vandalism branded him as the "Terror of the North" (975-1000 A. D.).

—and raw tobaccos have no place in cigarettes

They are not present in Luckies ... the mildest cigarette you ever smoked

WE buy the finest, the very finest tobaccos in all the world—but that does not explain why folks everywhere regard Lucky Strike as the mildest cigarette. The fact is, we never overlook the truth that "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—so these fine tobaccos, after proper aging and mellowing, are then given the benefits of that Lucky Strike purifying process, described by the words—"It's toasted". That's why folks in every city, town and hamlet say that Luckies are such mild cigarettes.

Does not this explain the world-wide acceptance and approval of Lucky Strike?

CONFESSED SLAYER ATTEMPTS SUICIDE

Urbana Man Swallows Ground Glass; Condition Is Not Serious

By The Associated Press

URBANA, O., Sept. 6—A confessed slayer's attempted suicide by swallowing ground glass was believed today to have failed, by physicians who said his condition was not serious.

Clifford Smith, 26, made the attempt on his life 24 hours after he confessed to Prosecutor W. M. Vance, that he forced his wife, Dorothy, 25, to shoot her alleged lover, Joe Batts, 46, in the head after he himself had knocked the man senseless with an automobile jack handle.

Smith said he obtained the glass by crushing a tumbler in his cell yesterday. Earlier he had signed a second confession, naming two witnesses to the killing. Their identities were withheld.

Batts, a widower and insurance dealer, was killed March 2, 1930. The investigation which led to the confessions of Smith and his wife, 30 months later, was spurred by the insistence of Batts' sister, Mrs. Mary Won, now of Springfield, that her brother had not committed suicide as officials at one time were inclined to believe.

HYDROPLANE RACER PLAN SPEED TESTS

Gar Wood Wins Harmsworth Trophy from Kaye Don.

By The Associated Press

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 6—Gar Wood and Kaye Don, victor and loser respectively in the Harmsworth trophy race that ended yesterday when the challenging craft, Miss England III, broke down and withdrew, today were planning further tests of their hydroplanes.

Wood, whose Miss America X coasted to a slow victory in both heats of the race because of mechanical troubles to Don's craft, was making arrangements for an assault on the world's one-mile championship, now held by Miss England III at 110.81 miles an hour. The time and place for the trial have not been determined.

Don, disappointed at the second failure of his craft, but smiling nevertheless, will leave tomorrow or Thursday for Toronto. There, if repairs can be effected in his white-hulled hydroplane, he will take it out again for a speed demonstration.

EAST COAST GIVEN STORM WARNING

Tropical Storm Expected to Miss Florida, Moving Northward.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6 — Florida was out of the path of the latest tropical storm today but the weather bureau had ordered hurricane warnings for the middle Atlantic coast.

Since Thursday a storm of reported hurricane intensity has been pushing slowly across the Caribbean toward the far southern mainland but early today it had shifted its course and pointed northward with the possibility that it would strike sometime late today between Wilmington, N. C. and Cape Hatteras.

However, weather charters said the warnings were precautionary and that there was a strong likelihood that the storm might again curve eastward across the ocean, endangering shipping but not touching the coast.

Sunday a dinner party was arranged at the home of the actress' mother. When Bern did not appear, Miss Harlow telephoned him. Authorities were informed he told her he was occupied with business affairs and wished to be alone. When she suggested that she return to their home, he asked her to remain at her mother's home.

Bern's servants had been at Mrs Bello's home for the party and it was upon their return to the film executive's residence that the tragedy was discovered.

Bern, a bachelor until his marriage July 2 to Miss Harlow, was known as a good samaritan to the hard-luck wanderers of Hollywood. He sponsored activities to aid unemployed film workers and provide money for school children whose parents were destitute.

His career began some years ago in New York as an actor, stage director and production executive. In 1926 he became a technical director of the films.

CITY TEACHERS TO CONVENE SATURDAY

Teachers in the Marion public schools will receive their final instructions before the opening of school next Monday, at a general teachers' meeting Saturday at 2:30 p. m. at Harding High school.

Supt. George A. Bowman will outline his plans for the opening day of school and for the year, following which the teachers will meet with the principals of the buildings in which they will teach, for more detailed instructions.

All public schools of the city have been thoroughly cleaned during the summer months, but the usual summer maintenance and repair program was eliminated by necessity of shortened funds.

Sixteen fewer teachers have been hired for the school year, which will make necessary larger classes in all grades. Wherever resignations occur this year, the teachers hired will be from among this group of 16, Mr. Bowman said.

When schools open Monday, the grade pupils will have a shortened schedule and will be dismissed earlier, but the junior and high schools will carry out the regular day's program, Mr. Bowman announced.

The junior and senior high schools will be open this week from 8:30 a. m. to 4 p. m. for registration and to give general information to parents and students regarding courses of study, etc. for the coming year. The opening of the school buildings a week in advance of the regular opening, is primarily an accomodation to those students who are new to Marion schools, the principals said this morning. Pupils who attended the junior or senior high schools here last year, are registered for this year's course.

Roop Urges Principles of Church in Business World

Declaring that the churches of Christ are praying to promote good will and peace in the economic world today, and that they stand ready to cooperate and all all organizations and movements that are striving to bring about better conditions for the industrial civilization, Rev. Carl V. Roop of the First United Brethren church delivered the last of the union services last night at Epworth M. E. church. The church was well filled.

The service closed the summer program sponsored by the Marion County Ministerial association of which Rev. Roop is president.

Next Sunday, the uptown Protestant churches, that formed the union services, will meet in their own auditoriums for Sunday night services.

Preaching from Jeremiah 29:13, Rev. Roop spoke in part as follows: "As Israel of old wandered from the paths of righteousness which led them into captivity and caused their financial reverses, so we today, believing ourselves independent, have been led into vain until the bottom has fallen out of our economic structure and we find ourselves camping in the grounds of despair, while the wheels of industry are not moving, the wheels of factories are not rolling and the unemployment situation continues."

"Our country was not made by the congress at Washington, but by prayerful, godly fathers and mothers who counted about for worship in the shades of their own homes. They have been the stabilizing agencies to lead us as a people in our upward and outward march to the exalted principles of the lord," Nazarene who said, "I work and my father works also."

"We dare not forget the Lord in remembering our own interests. But may we trust more in His word and not in our own strength alone, that heaven and earth and waywards shall soon be passed away."

Preceding the sermon service, the Marion City Young People's union held a business session.

was recently brought to light when it was revealed that State Campaign Manager Charles H. Lewis and associates were without telephone service because the Ohio Bell Telephone company too vividly remembers that the organization has an unpaid deficit of $40,000

Democratic Chairman Henry G Brunner is also insisting upon severe economies at Democratic headquarters.

The campaign literature the badges and the billboard advertising that might be expected at this stage of the battle have not yet made their appearance—supposedly because the organizations are moving with caution until they know how much they will have to spend

Joseph R Nutt of Cleveland treasurer of the Republican national committee is said to be planning a single financial drive in Ohio for the purpose of raising money for both the state and national campaigns

National Committeeman W A Julian treasurer of the Democratic state executive committee and Robert S Hayes of Columbus, treasurer of the state central committee, will raise funds for the Democrats No drive is contemplated however

With no promise of having a big sum of money available R C Snyder the Norwalk and Sandusky publisher who will direct Republican publicity is understood to be planning to boom the Republican cause by expertly prepared news releases

Name and face stuff as politicians call it will have to be reduced. Pictures of leading candidates alongside their names in foot-high letters are often used to introduce a little known candidate to the public.

Ohio Republicans have used this method in the past In one recent state campaign $500 of their campaign fund was spent for leasing a signboard in downtown Columbus across from the state capitol.

Opposing Snyder in the publicity fight will be Elmer Fries former Cincinnati editor and all year publicity director at Democratic headquarters He is a believer in year-around publicizing of the party's candidates and record

Both organizations will use as much of their funds as possible for newspaper advertising although the sum will be limited due to the general lack of funds

SLUMP SEEN IN OHIO CROPS

Rain Not General Enough To Benefit All Area, Bureau Reports.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS O Sept 6 Central Ohio farmers received a much belated rain the latter part of last week but it was not widespread enough to benefit all the suffering areas

In addition said H E Curtis of the Ohio Farm Bureau research department it came too late to be of much benefit in late crops

Corn needed rain at least two weeks ago but it did not come and as a result farmers in some of the important corn producing counties estimated their crop had been shortened one-fourth to one-third The ears are shorter than usual and the kernels did not fill well which makes them loose on the cob On Aug 1 it was estimated that Ohio's corn crop would total 134,042,000 bushels Since this estimate however the weather has been so unfavorable that the yield probably will be lessened materially

Ohio's apple crop this year probably will be about one-third the bumper 1931 yield Considerable damage has been done by scab codling moth and worms besides drouth It is reported there will be virtually no Baldwins in northern Ohio though the Rome Beauties in the southern part of the state are in good condition

In the state at large this year's hay crop will be about eight per cent below average although about four percent larger than last year Good yields of alfalfa are reported in all sections especially in the western part of Ohio, but the yields from other tame hay have been disappointing The poor pasture condition which has forced feeding of hay earlier than usual this year, probably will be a factor which will lend strength to the local hay market this fall and winter

FROM CHOIR TO FILMS

Charlotte Susa, German film star now in Hollywood, doesn't have to depend alone on her acting ability to get along in American films. She can sing also.

* * *

By The Associated Press

HOLLYWOOD, Calif.—There's a new rise in Hollywood since Charlotte Susa, arrived to appear in American pictures.

Miss Susa is the German star, ready well known in American cities where foreign films are shown, whose beauty as well as musical ability are expected to carry her far in Hollywood.

A slender blond type who recalls the silent screen beauty of Vilma Banky and the glamor of Marlene Dietrich, Miss Susa was on the stage in Germany until three years ago, when she appeared in the German talkie, "The Tiger," after being "discovered" for the screen at an actors' ball.

Born in the part of Germany that is now Latvia, March 1, 1909, Miss Susa spent her childhood on a farm near Memel and attended among other schools an exclusive finishing school at Manheim, Germany.

It was when she was singing in a choir, at 10 years of age, that she was observed by a director and given a chance in light opera, which began her stage career.

Her films include "Two Souls," "Day, Train 13," the musical "Under False Flags" and half a dozen others.

A suitable vehicle for her Hollywood debut is now being selected.

MARYSVILLE, Sept. 6—Harold Coleman of Marysville, defeated Eugene Rausch, two up and one to play in the championship match for Union county at the Marysville country club tournament. Coleman chalked up an 85 for the 18 holes, two strokes less than Rausch. At the end of the first nine holes the players were even, Coleman winning during the second round.

GALION COUPLE WED AT NEW WINCHESTER

Meyers-Englehorn Marriage Solemnized at Open Church Ceremony.

GALION, Sept. 6—The marriage of Miss Marie E. Meyers and John H. Engelhorn, both of Galion, was solemnized at 4:30 p. m. Sunday at the United Brethren church at New Winchester. Open church was observed and the single ring ceremony was read by Rev. T. O. Copus, pastor of the United Brethren church at North Robinson.

A program of music preceding the ceremony included piano numbers by Miss Rosella Girton who played Lohengrin's wedding march for a processional, and Willard Girton sang "I Love You Truly."

The bride was given away in marriage by her brother, Elmer Meyers. She wore an ivory satin gown, with small hat and slippers to match, and carried an arm bouquet of pink roses, delphinium, and baby breath.

Mrs. Margaret Patterson Beck was matron of honor. The bridesmaid was Miss Louise Kumm, niece of the bridegroom.

Kensel Beck acted as best man. Following the ceremony a 6 o'clock dinner was served at Sugar Grove Lake with covers laid for 70 guests.

The bridegroom is employed at the United States Steel Vault Co., and the couple will make their home at 469 Harding Way E.

ELLEN EVANS' FOOD TALKS

Inexpensive Meat Cuts for the Small Budget

ELLEN EVANS

THE old saw that "Necessity is the mother of invention," more often than not turns out to be true. And the necessity that faces many of us, to curtail expenses; to seek out, cheaper foods; surprisingly enough, often leads us to culinary discoveries that would tempt a jaded appetite at any time. Particularly is this true when we experiment with savory ways to use the cheaper cuts of meat.

To those of us who have considered chops and steaks and high priced roasts as the only possible solution for the meat problem the discovery that many of the cheaper cuts have even greater flavor and may be prepared in less time will come as a great surprise. The time element is especially important now that hot days are here and it's desirable to spend as few hours as possible in a hot kitchen.

Among the most satisfactory of the so-called "tough cuts" are shoulders, rumps, chucks, necks, and flanks. They may be prepared in such a great variety that the old regime of steaks, chops and roasts seems almost uninteresting in comparison. Then, too, there's always the fun of meeting the challenge of making something delicious out of a thing, that, at the start, seemed to have limited possibilities.

Ways To Use the Cheaper Cuts

Perhaps you have been accustomed to regarding beef neck as material for a stew or soup. It may surprise you to learn, that, with the proper cooking it may be turned into a savory roast. It has a delicious flavor and is very juicy two important attributes in roasting meat. Have all the bones and fat removed and cook very slowly at a simmering temperature in plenty of moisture.

Many butchers have a new machine for scoring flank steak. When prepared in this manner it is known as "cube" steak and since all the tough fibres are cut by the scoring it may be broiled or fried and its unique and individual flavor is widely appreciated. If your butcher does not have the special equipment for scoring you may prepare it yourself by slashing in squares with a sharp knife. Another delicious way to prepare flank steak is to rub it liberally with flour and roll it around a well seasoned dressing. Cook slowly and serve with a rich gravy made from the juices of the steak. This steak is equally palatable served with a tomato and carrots sauce.

The Importance of Slow Cooking

The chuck, which is quite boney is best cut into thin steak and broiled. Chuck ribs, however, make delicious roasts when cooked in an extremely low oven. The beauty of all these cheap roasts is that they require very little watching. Many may be cooked over the open flame instead of in the heat making oven.

Round steak—while not as cheap as flank or chuck may be utilized in many tempting ways. Stuffed robins—made of squares of the steak stuffed with a dressing in which celery and onions are used as flavoring, rolled and fastened with tooth picks, may be cooked in a closely covered pan with plenty of moisture. Ground round steak has many possibilities. It may be used in spaghetti sauce. It is delicious made into balls with egg and a dash of nutmeg. The balls are browned and then covered with water and allowed to simmer over a slow fire and served in their own thickened juice. Meat loaf, patties, broiled or fried with onion are but two more ways of using this most versatile of meats.

The breast and shoulder lamb cuts are useful for stews, roasts or broiling. Pork, too, has its cheaper cuts—though nowdays all pork seems so cheap that we may use it in practically any form. Try using these cheaper cuts and win the applause of your public—the family!

Your purse and your appetite will both benefit—and in addition you'll find that you spend far less time in the kitchen—a real accomplishment.

Pigskins in Demand.

Reminders that the season for America's over-emphasized sport is about to open are unnecessary. The boys on the corner lot are giving up horsehide for pigskin and coaches have begun to assert their seasonal authority over candidates for high school and college teams. It's time to give up worrying about over-emphasis in favor of doing something that will get dear old Whatsis through schedule with a decent record.

The first thuds of swinging feet on bouncing footballs are a fitting accompaniment to speculation concerning the probable future of the favorite scholastic sport. In what direction is the game going and how soon will it arrive at a fixed destination?

The answer is hinted at each year about this time, when all the previous talk about abuses of the sport is made secondary to enjoyment of the splendid exhibitions it provides. In other words, consideration of football at the beginning of September is vastly different from consideration in the dull days which follow the close of a season. The game still has hearty public support. It will not be altered radically while that support exists.

One university, soliciting approval, may announce a change of policy intended to elevate the standard of its sports program in the opinion of its following, but another university will continue to try to win at any cost. The football reform element, which has made sporadic appearances in the east, will not be able to impress itself very deeply on coaches, athletic boards, athletes and crowds until they become dissatisfied with the game in its present condition.

Another exciting season is in prospect, with the teams that customarily engage attention ready to perform spectacularly once more. Enthusiasm that has rested since the close of the 1931 season is beginning to stir anew in every community that will turn out on crisp afternoons this fall to cheer for ill willing boys trying to get the ball over the enemy's line. Perhaps it's over-emphasis. Still, America always seems willing to be exposed once more to whatever peculiar danger it holds.

"Illusory Remedy."

Roscoe Pound, dean of the Harvard law school and a member of the Wickersham commission, has contributed a good phrase to discussion of the prohibition issue. He calls outright repeal of the 18th amendment an "illusory remedy," and indorses President Hoover's statement on prohibition as an opinion commanding the respect of "thinking people who seek progress toward a stable, workable plan rather than sensational plunges from one extreme to another."

It is, unfortunately, a social tendency to think and act in extremes; the inevitable compromise—the "golden mean"—is effected by the agencies of time and experience. In popular government, the perfect state—an extreme—is the goal of legislative thought and action, but the imperfect state is as far as men have been able to progress.

Suggestions that the start be made on the basis of compromise are turned down, invariably. They were turned down by prohibitionists, who are now forced to admit that they bit off more than they could chew. Anti-prohibitionists, however, are reluctant to rend the lesson of extreme action in the book of experience. They are hesitating on the brink of the same chasm of error.

They charge those who advise moderation with evasion. Pointing out that the attempt to outlaw alcoholic beverages was too extreme, they advise a measure no less extreme—a return to the very conditions which prompted the attempt. Straight thinkers like Dean Pound can not keep still in the presence of such a grave error and remain on even terms with their consciences. They, more than ordinary men, have personal cause to regret that the prohibition issue has fallen into the hands of politicians, who rarely find it expedient to argue in clear terms of logic.

Plea for Privacy.

Fame brings in its attendant adulation of a hero-worshipping world, its own penalties in the loss of privacy and the right, denied to those who achieve greatness, to live their own lives in their own way.

The nation listened with sympathetic ear to the plea of Colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh that they and their children be allowed to go their way as normal citizens. Yet, whenever they appear outside their own home they may expect to be followed by the curious and shrouded by the throngs which always follow those whose names have become great in the ear of the public.

There is a particular reason, however, why the plea for privacy made by Prof. Albert Einstein and his associates should be observed, for the affairs of the world may be influenced largely by the extent to which he is permitted to follow his scientific experiments without interference.

Prof. Einstein is one of the accidents in this fantastically eccentric quality of hero-worship of which Americans are so fond. The quiet, studious German scientist was not the type which generally attracts the public interest when he came in 1921 with his violin under his arm and a profound scientific theory under his picturesque mane of stubborn hair.

An interviewer, seeking something which would make this visiting savant a news figure, challenged the world to understand the professor's theory of relativity. It was a new idea and the professor became as great a public figure as though he had flown the ocean, whipped somebody in a glorified fist fight or starred in a successful movie.

It was bewildering to him. He protested that he has worked on other things much more important than the theory of relativity but no one paid any attention to him. Next he was annoyed and finally amused. It must be conceded that Americans and their ways have turned the professor into a "good sport." On his last trip he showed positive signs that he really enjoyed some of the commotion. It entertained him to talk to interviewers in terms they could not understand and he accepted luncheon club engagements with a willingness which indicated his real pleasure. On the way home he told European journalists, "Nice people, those Americans."

That was when he was on a pleasure trip. He is to return under a plan whereby he will spend five months of each year in scientific work here. His playing days are over and he expressed the hope that the "nice American people" will let him devote himself to his work without the interference which follows celebrity. The request should be granted but probably it will not be. Intellects like those of Prof. Einstein are too rare and their possibilities too tremendous to be hampered by interference even though it be kindly, cordial and well-meaning.

Ships Coming In.

Of all the ways of getting money for nothing, one of the surest is to offer something for nothing—for a nominal payment, of course. From the first, people have been suckers when offered a chance to hasten the passage of the ship that they hoped was "coming in."

A common variety of the something-for-nothing racket is the estate lure, in which a goodly number of supposed heirs are playing along with the promise of a fat division of the spoils. No crude tactics are permitted to spoil the sport. It is refined to the point where the victims actually take the hook eagerly and struggle to get it, so hopeful are they of finding security.

Crime sometimes has redeeming features, it must be admitted. The fact is that a considerable portion of criminal activity is made possible and richly lucrative because it makes people happy—at first. There is even the possibility that the deception may be worth the price.

If a hopeful mind can be made to believe by the payment of $50 that his hope is to be rewarded with cash in the hand eventually, the payment almost can be entered in the budget under the heading of entertainment. A great showman made a fortune by means only slightly more honest. He knew what the undivided estate racketeers still practice—the people like to be fooled.

Still, it is criminal to fool them and take their money unless they knowingly are paying to be fooled. The state of Ohio, it is reported, is going to clean up some of its gold brick salesmen, which is a worthy intention. But as long as there are buyers for them to work on with their rosy promises it seems safe to predict that they will not be exterminated.

Youth's Wanderlust.

Thousands of boys who have taken to the road and who roam the country without any particular purpose or destination furnish a new problem for individuals and organizations already burdened with the load of worries arising from the economic disorder of our times.

Only an elementary understanding of the psychology of youth is required to arrive at an explanation of this troublesome social phenomenon. Adolescence is the period of activity and motion. The normal boy can not and will not sit quietly at home. Things are occurring rapidly out in the world and he wants a place in the activities of the times.

Under normal circumstances the boy who graduates from high school or quits school when his age will permit, finds a place in industry or business. He gets a job where he earns enough money to finance his desire for pleasure and employment of his leisure hours. The mere fact that he is busy during much of the day affords a tie to hold him in his home community.

In these strange times there are no jobs to be had by the boy just reaching maturity. Time is heavy on his hands and he has no money for recreation. The open road is the most logical answer in his rebellion against such conditions. There, he believes, travel awaits the boy who can thumb a ride from motorists or hop a freight train. Social organizations in most of the cities provide a certain amount of food. Shelter is not an important matter at this time of the year and the vagrant thinks little about clothes.

These boys of 16 to 20 leave home, therefore, and start traveling because it promises something to do, something to see and change of surroundings. It is dangerous to life and limb and morals. It is likely to instil a nomadic tendency which will last through life; it wastes the formative years on which the building of character depends so greatly.

Any lodging house for transients can tell the same story. Its guests are made up largely of boys in their teens or just starting their twenties.

Some of the blame for this condition rests on motorists who are too easily induced by a beckoning thumb to help boys on their travels away from home. Much of the credit that the number is not higher belongs to recreation organizations in the various communities which give boys and young men something to do in their spare time. Neither removes the parents of responsibility for doing everything in their power to keep their boys off the highways.

The prospect of finding jobs in some other locality is a fallacious hope. No community at the present has opportunities enough for its own youths. Instead of finding a fortune the young traveler is more likely to finish as a physical or moral cripple—maimed by one of the traffic accidents which have increased alarmingly since the army of wanderers took to the road or turned into a tramp by the precarious possibilities of airiers touring by the box car or humming route.

Tampering with Moles Dangerous.

"Man is born unto trouble, as the sparks fly upward," said that man of Uz, whose name was Job.

It certainly is the truth that we bring into this life many little defects, some of which may ripen into serious ailments. For example, that common and apparently harmless skin blemish known as a "mole," may change its nature and become a real menace to its owner.

Usually one is born with the mole. Or it may appear within the early weeks of life.

As a rule moles are harmless. Unfortunately, however, certain forms are dangerous and in rare instances develop into cancer.

When irritated or scratched, there may be rapid changes and a demand for immediate surgical care. There should be no self tampering with moles, warts, tumors and pigmentations of the skin. Certainly they should never be removed unless under the supervision of a physician.

The common, harmless form of mole is usually round or flat. Its pigment gives it a brownish color. It may be elevated above the level of the skin, having hairs growing from it.

Moles vary in size from a pinhead, to several inches in diameter. In rare cases they involve a very considerable area and may be quite disfiguring. They rarely grow in size after the thirteenth to fourteenth year.

The mole contains many small blood vessels. These bleed freely if the skin is cut or scratched. Infection with ulceration of the mole is an unpleasant complication. If for any reason a mole begins to increase rapidly in size, immediate removal is indicated. Rapid growth usually means dangerous changes. Nature's warning should not be neglected and surgical attention should be had at once.

Cancerous changes in a mole seldom occur before the fiftieth year. When this change does take place, it is rapid. If neglected, "metastasis" or spread of cancer to some other part of the body may occur. This is extremely serious.

Many medical authorities advise removal of all large pigmented moles. Others claim it is only the mole that is irritated and increases in size that is dangerous and should be removed.

Removal is impossible in certain instances. In such cases the X-ray or radium applications may be beneficial.

Some persons unwisely resort to the use of patent medicines for the removal of unsightly and disfiguring moles. This is a dangerous practice. The undesirable discoloration may be removed, but the underlying structures may be seriously irritated. This may produce a severe and serious inflammation, leading to serious results.

Here is one thing I want you to remember: Many persons worry over large brownish, mole-like spots which appear on the skin in middle life. They are numerous and usually located on the back. This alteration is skin pigmentation, merely, not cancer. To be on the safe side and to do away with the miseries of worry, consult with your doctor. He will advise you.

"Just been lunching with your husband, darling. You don't mind?"

A Washington Daybook
BY HERBERT PLUMMER.

Washington, Sept. 6—Another son of a famous father will make his debut on capitol hill next March when Joseph W. Bailey of Texas takes his seat as a member of the house of representatives.

Not since young Bob LaFollette of Wisconsin took over the senate seat of his father, perhaps, has the capital been so interested in a family succession as it is in that of the Baileys.

"Old Joe" Bailey was a power on capitol hill for 25 years of his political career. He was typical of the old school of capitol statesmen. Considered one of the foremost orators of the senate, he still is remembered for his long, black double-breasted coat, broad-brimmed black hat and flowing black tie.

For 10 years he served as a member of the house and for 13 as a member of the senate. He resigned his seat in 1913 after he had been criticized for acting as an attorney for a big oil concern.

* * *

If young Joe has ambitions to follow in the footsteps of his father as a member of congress, he has his work cut out for him. Like his father, he is starting out in the house.

But it was in the senate that the elder Bailey won his reputation. In his day he was regarded as one of the leading Constitutional lawyers in congress. He believed in a strict interpretation of the Constitution and was fond of declaring that he had no patience with modern innovations proposed as modifications of that document.

Perhaps "Old Joe's" ablest speech in the senate was the one he made in farewell on this subject. For four hours he spoke, while almost every senator remained in his seat and the galleries packed.

He was regarded as one of the most eloquent orators of his time.

The son was his father's law partner and intimate after his retirement from the senate. Those who know him say that he shares the old political doctrines that once were his father's.

* * *

Bailey's entrance into national politics swells the number of sons who have succeeded to their fathers' old positions.

Young Bob LaFollette is perhaps the most outstanding example. But there are many others.

Senator Bankhead of Alabama sits in the seat once occupied by his father. Senator Frederic Hale of Maine occupies the post held so long by his father.

Over in the house Paul Kvale of Minnesota carries on for his father who was burned to death several years ago. There, too, Charlie Crisp of Georgia occupies seats where his father arose to be Speaker. Crisp Jr. is making a name for

JAMES M. ASHLEY.

An Ohioan, James M. Ashley of Toledo, played an important part in getting before the country the anti-slavery amendment to the Constitution.

On Feb 10, 1864, Senator Trumbull offered an amendment resolution in the senate and it was adopted, but was defeated in the house.

Mr. Ashley, who had voted for it, immediately changed his vote for the purpose of moving a reconsideration, which he did, and the resolution went over to the next session. It came to a vote on Jan. 6, 1865, and was adopted.

However, the states voted slowly on the amendment, and it was not until Dec 18, 1865—nearly eight months after Lincoln's assassination—that the secretary of state was able to issue his declaration formally declaring that the anti-slavery provision had been made a part of the Constitution.

Ashley, a native of Pennsylvania, came to Toledo as a druggist, but, losing his stock by fire without insurance, he turned to the law and became highly successful. He served five terms in congress.

Daily Talk to Parents
BY ALICE JUDSON PEALE

A READING DISABILITY.

A brilliant young high school student suddenly began to have difficulty in reading the French which was a necessary part of his preparation for college.

Until two years ago he had been an excellent student in this subject as in others. Now he seemed unable to make sense of a simple French passage and halted and stumbled and mispronounced when called upon to read aloud.

The school psychologist to whom he was sent asked him to try to recall the first occasion on which this difficulty had arisen and to tell her whatever came to mind.

Hesitatingly the lad brought forth the words, "Stairs—Attic." And then it immediately occurred to him that in the attic at home there were stored away in boxes certain books which he always had been forbidden to read. These were for the most part French novels.

Just about two years ago he had stolen up to the attic and read for a whole afternoon. Thereafter he had felt deeply ashamed and guilty and lived for awhile in extreme fear that his parents would find out what he had done.

It required but little pointing out to show the boy that his subsequent inability to read French at school was due to the interference of his guilty feelings whenever he was required to look at French words. He was able to see, too, that this inability was serving unconsciously as a self-inflicted punishment for his wrong doing.

The boy was also able to realize that the punishment which he had meted out to himself was out of all proportion to the wrong he had done.

This new understanding of his school difficulty enabled him at once to overcome it and to master his French lessons in the future as effectively as all others.

New York Day by Day
BY O. O. McINTYRE.

New York, Sept. 6—Not far from Avenue A is an old-time corner saloon as pristine as a canopied surrey. Karl Kitchen, a shark at excavating metropolitan antiquities, took me there. Nothing has been changed in the 52 years of its existence. A grandson of its founder now tends bar.

A cat naps on a window ledge. The mirror is frescoed with soapy curlicues suggesting a four-master breasting a wave. Salty pretzels and blobs of cheese fill a bowl and a pewter container holds cloves, cinnamon and coffee. There is a ceiling-high ice box, gas jet chandeliers and a yeasty odor.

The present owner, and his bartending son, live up stairs with their families. Old men, in pipe-smoking silence, play pinochle at a corner table. Now and then a spindly-legged child stretches an arm upward to the bar with a tin bucket—reviving the ancient custom of "rushing the growler."

A cheerful, bandy-legged fellow is a combination porter, back-room waiter and runner of inglorious errands. Every saloon had one of these humbler heroes. Now and then a jetsam madam sits alone in gloomy reflection of a swell in pine-fours and leading a wire-hair drops in from Sutton Place for a beer.

Beer, incidentally, is the only beverage. Perhaps the only modern touch is the radio pianissimo. There is no speak-easy peephole scrutiny. The "Family Entrance" is open at 7 a. m. and closes promptly at 1. There was no denying the charm of its mellowness and the fascination of its types.

* * *

The saloon was an abominable institution and should never stage a come-back. Yet, I could not help but compare this relic of other days with the murderous speak-easies that honey-comb every block. Crude as the old saloon was, it had none of the viciousness of the modern speak.

The passing of Budd's may mean little to an oncoming generation. But to elders it recalls a debonair haberdashery, known from coast to coast. A Budd shirt or tie was a symbol of swank. A high-priced shop, it could not stand the prolonged depression. So creditors took it over.

* * *

There was a clerk at the Budd's, below Fulton, I shall ever remember. In that julep of abandon that comes with the weekly pay and the Saturday half day, I walked around from a newspaper office to gaze into Budd's window. A glorious blue tie with mearnadine stripes fired my fancy. I stepped in to inquire the price. It was $7. In a lunatic seizure of self-consciousness, I had it sent C. O. D. to a suddenly thought-up name at the Waldorf. My deception worried me so I dropped a postcard anonymously to the store, explaining my trick was an outcropping of sudden embarrassment over the price. A few days later in a noon-day walk on Dey street, I ran into the clerk. He stopped, shook hands and wangled my name and address. That night the tie had been delivered with his compliments.

The seasoned crook trembles at the implication in that underworld phrasing: "If you don't, it will be just too bad." It may mean anything from a machine gunning to a throat slitting. What inspired this reflection was a telephonic invitation from a night club impresario opening a new haunt. I explained my night club enthusiasm had jelled and that I was a fireside corner boy. In his insistence, he said: "If you don't come, it will be just too bad." And if you think I won't be there you are just plain silly.

ROAD LABOR LIST CHECKED

Committee Continues Inquiry in Morrow County; Reports Rule Not Violated.

Special to The Star

MT GILEAD, Sept 6—A committee composed of Ray Curl, president of the Morrow county commissioners, H O Hanna county superintendent of school, and A W. Ault will again check the labor situation in the road construction job on Route 42 east of Mt. Gilead this week. Reports that Speedway Construction Co officials were not abiding by the terms of their contract in employment of local labor have been circulated and caused considerable dissatisfaction among residents of the community.

Say Reports Exaggerated

A preliminary investigation reveals, members of the committee say, that reports in regard to the importation of labor were exaggerated The company is required by the terms of its contract to employ 60 per cent of its common labor from the community in which the done is done The company is allowed however, to keep its own crew of skilled labor and also may bring 40 per cent of the common laborers The state highway department has incorporated the local labor clause in a great majority of the contracts for construction work this year

The preliminary investigation revealed that the company is employing the required amount of local labor and that the dissatisfaction among residents of the community is due to either misunderstanding of misinformation, the committee reported The road is being widened and resurfaced Concrete is now being poured at the Williamsport end of the improvement and all new laborers taken on are being selected from a list of local unemployed, it was reported.

Rule on Skilled Labor

A great part of the work, however, requires skilled labor and the contractor is fully within his rights in maintaining his own crew of experienced workers for that class of work, the committee stated.

The list of local laborers employed will be kept at the required percentage, Pete Galler, superintendent for the construction company, has assured local officials. The situation, however, will be fully investigated and the employees' list periodically checked by the committee

It is necessary at times to lay off some of the laborers, Galler said, because of the nature of the work, and because some are found not to be producing.

RIDDLE OF THE SANDS

Your guess is just as good as ours when it comes to telling which of these beach nymphs is Lois and which is Ruth McLaughlin. They are twin daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Charles McLaughlin, prominent society folk of Hempstead, L. I., and even their fond parents sometimes have a little difficulty in telling them apart. They are shown at Lido Beach, L. I., where identification is made all the more difficult by the twins wearing twin bathing suits.

Beautician Advises on Clearing Up Blemishes on Milady's Back

BY JOSEPHINE HUDDLESTON

MANY women complain of blemishes on the back, although other parts of the body are free from this unpleasant condition.

There are several methods of treatment for the back, and the most important is a long-handled (loofah brush). Why? Because blemishes between the shoulder blades usually indicate that that area is not cleansed as thoroughly as other parts of the body.

It is difficult to reach between the shoulder blades, and for that reason we frequently do not remove collections of oil and dead skin from that part as completely as we do from other parts of the body. Therefore it is essential that we avail ourselves of a long-handled brush, to enable us to scrub vigorously and completely between the shoulders and low on the back.

In addition, one of two kinds of soap should be used until the blemished condition is conquered. Tar soap is excellent for this, or tincture of green soap. Either can be had at your nearest drug store for a small sum.

Method of Treatment

Tincture of green soap comes in liquid form, and tar soap should be dissolved in a little water—about one-half pint to the average size bar—before using it. The treatment is the same, regardless of which soap you use.

Wet the brush in warm water, pour a little soap on the brush and scrub the blemished area thoroughly. Rinse off this later, then rub on a second lather and let it remain on the skin until it dries. Then take your usual cleansing bath.

If the condition is only an excessively oily skin marred by blackheads, use the brush vigorously when applying the soap, but if there is an actual pimpled condition, use the brush lightly until the skin shows definite signs of clearing up.

When pimples are present, it frequently is advisable to consult your doctor, who probably will prescribe an ointment to be applied after bathing.

Diet Is Essential

Most skin eruptions come from digestive disturbances, and in such cases diet is an essential part of treatment to clear the skin. Frequently an excessively oily state develops on the back, and because it is not readily seen the trouble is not noted until actual blemishes appear.

My Beauty Hint

BY LUCILE GLEASON

SOAP and hot water and a brisk ice rub afterward to close the pores keep my face fit.

I use the ice after the hot water to close the pores and strengthen the muscles which the heat has relaxed.

In the morning I put ice in a thin towel and rub it on my neck and shoulders briskly. Then I dash on a face tonic and pat in the powder.

SHORT LINE SERVICE MARKET

[illegible] W. Center St. Phone 2111—4294.

Nan's face went blank; her color was gone.

She said, "Oh, no—I'd rather not." Then, with a pathetic earnestness, "Oh, please don't make me."

"Then you'll have to put up with me—and I'm nothing like the performer that he is."

Ferdinand was an accomplished dancer; the new Mrs. Jervis Weare was an exquisite one. Jervis experienced an elusive feeling of being for once at the top of a form to which he had never previously aspired. He looked down at Nan's brown head. He could just see one of her ears. It was little and delicately shaped; the lobe showed pink between short waves of hair.

"I suppose you know how beautifully you dance. I wouldn't have dared ask you if I had known."

She looked up for a moment—one of those direct looks of hers.

"I was a dancing partner at Solano's for six months before I went to Mr. Page," she said.

"Did you like it?"

She could hear the frown in his voice.

"No." It was a very sober monosyllable to cover a good deal of shrinking distaste. After a very little pause she added, "I did like the dancing."

"Why did you do it?"

"I couldn't get anything else to do."

"Haven't you any people?"

"Only Cynthia—really."

He was down on that like a flash.

"Who isn't real?"

"An aunt, I couldn't possibly ask her for anything."

"Why?"

She looked up again.

"She's that sort. She finished our education."

"And then?"

"She washed her hands of us. She washed them very thoroughly."

There were seats between the half pillars on two sides of the ballroom. They moved to the nearest and sat down. Jervis said, as if with an effort,

"I've been thinking things over. Would you object to coming down to Weare for a bit?"

"Why?"

Jervis' face changed suddenly. With the look of a teasing schoolboy he said:

"You could see I didn't get run over again." Jervis looked up, pricked to a sudden wonder. He wanted her to come — she must come.

"Well?" he said.

"I'll come," said Nan, and relaxed with a sigh.

To Be Continued.

"Heart of a Wife"

BY ADELE GARRISON

Lee Chow Demands Madge Drive Him at Once to Hugh Grantland.

"UNABLE to get in touch with you." I repeated Lee Chow's words to myself, my pulses pounding with excitement and fear. They could mean but one thing, I thought. He had been in the power of the Chinese, and the thing we had dreaded was true. The Chinese bandits, who had menaced us at the farmhouse, were behind the kidnapers of Marion and Carolyn, and their situation was much more perilous than if Charles Owen had been the instigator of the plot, as we at first had thought.

Fear was so strong upon me, that I forgot his demand to tell him everything that had happened since the day before, and blurted out:

"Then those Chinese bandits of the farmhouse did get you after all, as Hugh feared!"

Not a muscle of his face moved, and his eyes were inscrutable, yet there came to me the conviction that I had surprised him. However, his only words conveyed a subtle but unmistakable reproach.

"I do not know what Major Grantland feared. Perhaps you will be so good as to tell me what has happened?"

Lee Chow's Questions

"Everything has happened." I said quickly, repressing a primitive desire to slap that quietly composed look from his face. Then, as briefly as possible, I told of my telephone from the Chinese-sounding voice, summoning me to the mountain glen tea-room; of my discovery of the message, ostensibly from the Chinese bandits, and demanding Marion's lockbox, which I had found, as they had directed, beneath the candles in the pewter "two horse candlestick"; and lastly, of Hugh's discovery that Lee Chow had been missing from his hotel for twenty-four hours.

He waited until I had finished, his black eyes fixed upon my face. I spoke slowly, for I saw that he was weighing every word, sifting, comparing, deciding. And when he spoke his words were like revolver shots.

"So! Major Grantland has discovered that the bandits of the farm house are behind this kidnaping, and that they captured me! Where is my friend now?"

I stared at him in astonishment.

"Do you not know? Did not Dr. Barnes tell you?"

The ghost of a smile touched the corners of his lips and eyes.

"Dr. Barnes is a very cautious man, and justly so," he said. "Major Grantland seems to have been so sure that I—could not get away from—my captors—" Did I imagine it, or had that wraith of a smile made a second appearance?—"that he left no message for me. Naturally, all Dr. Barnes could do, as he said the men were all out of reach, was to ask you to come over. But please do not delay telling me where Major Grantland is?"

The Rest of the Story

There was urgent necessity in that voice, quiet and monotonous though it would have sounded to the casual ear, and I answered quickly, my own voice sharpened by vague fear.

"He is with my father, Mr. Underwood and a force of other men. They are starting up the mountain to the house where they believe the girls to be hidden."

"How do they know the girls are there? I know of the code note Marion sent, but—but—"

"My husband found the house Marion described," I interrupted quickly, and today he was sure he saw their signal. He will fly low over the house exactly ten minutes before the time for the attack from the woods, and at the sound, the girls will barricade their door and lie flat upon the floor, out of the range of possible bullets."

"Take Me to Him!"

"You have not mentioned Mr. Brixton. Is he one of the party?"

"Oh! You do not know, then?"

"Please do not delay telling me where he is."

"No one knows, but we think he is in the hands of the kidnapers." And then I sketched briefly the events of the night when Samuel Brixton had made his mysterious trip up the mountain roads, and Ronald and I had trailed him until he had been struck down and carried away by men who, we suspected, were the kidnapers of the girls.

Lee Chow was silent for fully a half minute after I told him this. Then he spoke with quick decision.

"I must get in touch with Major Grantland immediately. You came in a car, did you not?"

I nodded, dumbly waiting for his next words.

"Then you must take me to him at once."

Madge, Compelled To Break Her Promise to Dicky, Decides To Let Mary Go with Her and Lee Chow on the Night Trip into the Mountains.

IT HAD come, the thing which I had subtly dreaded ever since Dr. Barnes had summoned me to the school, saying that "Mr. Lee" was waiting for me. I had known, I think, even in the moment of recognition of Lee Chow's identity, that I would have to face the dilemma of breaking my work to Dicky, or endangering the safety of Marion and Carolyn by refusing to guide the high-born friend of Hugh Grantland to the scene of the attack planned upon the hiding-place of the kidnapers.

There was one possible way out and I seized it.

"I do not know the way to the house, the headquarters, from Dr. Barnes does. He will guide which they intend to set out, but you if he can."

"Get him, please, quickly. We are wasting time of value."

The Set of Maps

I knocked upon the door which Mrs. Barnes had shown me, and went through into her sitting room. Dr. Barnes was nowhere to be seen, and Mrs. Barnes kept glancing anxiously toward the hall clock as I told her what I wanted.

"Oh! My dear, how dreadful!" she exclaimed. "There is a committee meeting of the board here tonight, and Dr. Barnes could not possibly get away without explaining the urgency of his errand. Nothing but 'battle, murder, or sudden death,' is permitted to disturb those councils. You do not wish to acquaint them with this kidnaping, do you?"

"No, no!" I told her emphatically and with a feeling that the decision had been taken out of my hands, my bridges, indeed, burned behind me, I gave myself up to the zest of action.

"But I know nothing of the way, except the trail Ronald and I followed," I said, "and that, I am sure, is not the one they are taking tonight. Has Dr. Barnes any—"

"He has two full sets of maps, indicating every step of three possible ways they may take," she said. "Major Grantland left nothing to chance, and while he did not expect the expedition to come to harm, he gave us directions to summon the state police and send them up the trail at midnight, if no message to the contrary had been received by us from him before then. I'll show you those maps at once. I'm sure you'll be able to follow them."

I followed her back into the study and explained briefly to Lee Chow, while she arranged the maps upon the table.

"This, the first and simplest," Mrs. Barnes said, "shows you the way to the farmhouse which Major Grantland has made the headquarters from which they will set out. If you hurry, you may be able to catch them there."

"Haste must always wait for surety," Lee Chow said, bending over the maps with us. "If we fix these in our memories now, we may not have to stop to consult them."

With quickened faculties, I remembered that Lee Chow had the photographic memory of his race and I thanked my particular little joss for my own power, which my relatives and friends have dubbed uncanny for many years. I must not lag behind him, I told myself, and I studied the maps feverishly, determined no turn of the winding trails Hugh had indicated so clearly should escape me.

Mary Must Go

When Lee Chow finally straightened himself and picked up one set of the maps, I was sure that I could follow all the trails from memory. But I could not keep my face from flushing when he glanced at me shrewdly and said:

Major Grantland has said that you have a most remarkable memory. I think that you are going to justify that judgment tonight. May I take these?" He bowed deferentially to Mrs. Barnes.

"Of course."

"Then let us go." He waved me toward the door, but Mary sprang to my side.

"What about me?" she said. "I promised my uncle that I would not leave you while he is gone."

There was genuine concern for me in Mary's voice, a real desire to keep her pact with Dicky. But I knew that a stronger impulse even than these were sharpening her voice, and making jambent her eyes. Somewhere on the mountains around us were our men, one of them, Noel, her betrothed husband. That he, as well as the rest, were in danger, we all knew, and with my experience of Mary's bravery and forgetfulness of self, I knew also that we could deal her no more deadly blow than to refuse her permission to go with us.

The Stars Say—

For Wednesday, Sept. 7

THE sidereal movements for this day, as they apply to mundane affairs, must be interpreted as adverse. The day seems to be beset with difficulties, obstructions, disappointments, inharmonies and uncertainties both in business and in private associations. There is need of diplomacy and tact in employment, for being on the alert against trickery, fraud and sinister attack in dealing with large corporations or secret societies. Complete discretion is advised in purely personal relations, especially with the opposite sex.

Those whose birthday it is may fortify themselves for a year of rather harrowing conditions, with affairs generally working at cross purposes unless they put themselves against such opposition and hostility, both open and furtive. A child born on this day should be given particular training to cope with difficulties by tact and sagacity.

Notable nativity: Victorien Sardou, dramatist.

NEW DISCOVERIES CONFIRM VIRTUES OF BRAN IN DIET

Supplies "Bulk" and Vitamin B for Constipation; Also Iron for Blood

For ten years, now, millions have found Kellogg's ALL-BRAN a safe, pleasant way to overcome common constipation — with the headaches, loss of appetite and energy that so often result from this condition.

Recent laboratory tests show that ALL-BRAN supplies "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and Vitamin B to help tone the intestinal tract. In addition, ALL-BRAN contains twice as much blood-building iron, by weight, as beef liver.

This "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like the "bulk" in lettuce. Inside the body, it absorbs moisture and forms a soft mass, which gently cleans the intestines of wastes.

Special cooking processes make ALL-BRAN finer, softer, more palatable. It is not habit-forming.

Think how much better it is to enjoy this delicious cereal than to take endless pills and drugs, which often lead to harmful habits.

Two tablespoonfuls daily—in serious cases with every meal—are usually sufficient. If your intestinal trouble is not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Serve ALL-BRAN as a cereal with milk or cream, or use in cooking. Appetizing recipes on the red-and-green package. At all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.
